Dear Stephen,

The 2011 MBA Spring Conference is closer than you think and it is time to start planning to attend!

As usual, the conference will be held at the Kellogg Center on the Michigan State University campus during ANR week on Friday, March 11, 2010 and Saturday, March 12.

The featured speaker will be Dr. Jerry Bromenshenk. You may be familiar with this name as it has been in the news recently regarding his work on CCD. Dr. Bromenshenk also has been active in research using honey bees as chemical detectors. His presentation should prove to be interesting.

There will be break-out sessions on both days covering a wide range of topics that should be of interest for both the beginner and advanced beekeeper alike. And, of course, the ever-popular vendor area will be back so that you can see all of the latest beekeeping equipment in one place.

Pre-registration is available on-line and we encourage all attendees to do so. When you pre-register, your conference material will be available for immediate pick-up... no waiting in line. And, you get a discount too!
